The name John Wooden is synonymous with success. With ten NCAA Men's Basketball championships to his credit, one can easily see why his "Pyramid of Success" became a foundational teaching tool in sports and business. If we were to look at the tenets that make up his pyramid we'd see each of the building blocks working to complement each other in team building. The man is a legend and certainly a worthy person of get to know better. One of my favorite devotional books was written by Jay Carty and John Wooden in 2003. COACH WOODEN ONE-ON-ONE, has become more than a devotional resource for me over the years. It's become a wonderful reflection of this man whom I did not know, yet I feel that I've come to know him intimately by reviewing the conversations of Jay and Coach. And, our wonderful Father in Heaven is seen in each of the sixty topics presented in the book. Success is an elusive topic and what it really represents means something different to each of us. Let's take a hard look at success.

"Success is peace of mind which is a direct result of self-satisfaction in knowing you did your best to become the best that you are capable of becoming." Those are the words of Coach Wooden. And since he's had more than his share of success, I believe we'll just settle on Coach's words for this discussion. What we won't find in Coach's quote is any mention of winning, gaining wealth or fame, attaining honors, or finishing with more wins than losses. He also places no time frame on achieving success. I believe Coach Wooden considered success to be a lifelong process. I'll have to ask him that question when I meet him in Heaven.

One of my favorite people in scripture is King David. Certainly David was not perfect but he was a man after God's own heart (See Paul's account in Acts 13:22 - NIV). King David then instructs his son King Solomon in the building of the temple in 1 Chronicles 22:13, "Then you will have success if you are careful to observe the decrees and laws that the Lord gave Moses for Israel. Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid or discouraged." Perhaps what we are really seeking is the peace of mind that Coach talks about so lucidly. Inner peace is attainable and I gladly share that it's available to everyone, if we will only get out of the way and allow God to guide us in the life that lies ahead.

In dissecting Coach Wooden's and Jay Carty's devotional, I see that peace displayed again and again in the lives of both men. Perhaps this gained peace is the success that we all should strive to attain. It has nothing to do with wealth or status or anything tangible. It's that intangible factor that allows us to know that we are pleasing to our God and that He will one day tell us. "Welcome home my good and faithful servant!" If you are having trouble relating to this idea, I suggest you confront successful friends who seem to be content with their lives even though they may be facing obvious adversity. Hopefully they'll be able to share the Truth that can lead you to true success as well.
